

In India an estimated 500,000 minor girls have been forced into the commercial sex trade.

Each year, Survivor Girl Ukulele Band (SGUB) brings 20-30 ukuleles and strings - donated by Kala Brand Music Company, Koaloha Ukuleles, and Worth Strings - to India and works in a shelter home for rescued girls.

WORTH STRINGS

Most of these girls have very little education, so in learning how to play the ukulele, they also LEARN HOW TO LEARN.

They learn how to playsongs they know, from 'Twinkle Twinkle Little Star' to their favorite Bollywood hits. Then they start to find their own voice through writing songs and creating the soundtrack of their own life story.

SGUB also performs onstage at concerts and festivals in Kolkata. The practice, the preparation, and the performances bring a huge sense of achievement and empowerment. They LOVE being part of THE BAND.

A GLOBAL INVITATION TO BRING HOPE AND HEALING TO SURVIVORS OF HUMAN TRAFFICKING IN INDIA

WHAT'S IT ALL ABOUT?

Since 2013, Laurie Kallevig, founder of Survivor Girl Ukulele Band Project, has been bringing restoration, hope and healing to girls who have been rescued from forced prostitution, through the joy and fun of learning to play the ukulele. But she can't do it alone! She needs your help and support.
